

IMPORTANT UPDATE ON MULTIEMPLOYER PENSION PLANS: Cleveland Iron Workers Local 17 Pension Fund First to Receive Treasury Approval for Benefit Reductions Under the Kline-Miller Multiemployer Pension Reform Act

Background

Passed and enacted in 2014, the Kline-Miller Multiemployer Pension Reform Act introduced a new system for multiemployer pension plans to seek either temporary or permanent reduction of pension benefits. This legislation only applies to plans projected to run out of funding in advance of meeting all promised benefits.

Specifically, Kline-Miller requires the Treasury Department to review applications by multiemployer pension plans to cut benefits, assessing whether such applications meet the conditions passed by Congress. This review process must be done in consultation with both the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC) and the Department of Labor.

Keep in mind that most multiemployer pension plans are sufficiently funded and will not be eligible to apply for a reduction under Kline-Miller. However, many funds are in trouble. This is precisely why we recommend lawyers counseling parties in divorce proceedings check the US Department of Labor's Employee Benefits Security Administration list of Critical, Critical and Declining, and Endangered Funds found here.
